

Capture a subject in motion. Try to freeze the action or create a sense of movement using different shutter speeds.

Play with light and shadows. Use natural or artificial light to create interesting patterns and contrasts.

Create a portrait. Focus on capturing the personality and emotion of your subject.

Experiment with macro photography. Get up close to capture the fine details of small objects.

Capture a landscape. Pay attention to composition, lighting, and depth of field.

Try a long exposure shot. Use a tripod to capture movement over a longer period of time, such as flowing water or passing cars.

Photograph reflections. Use mirrors, water, or other reflective surfaces to create interesting images.

Shoot in black and white. Focus on textures, contrasts, and shapes without the distraction of color.

Capture a candid moment. Take photos of people in natural, unposed situations.

Experiment with different perspectives. Change your angle or viewpoint to create a unique and interesting shot.
